Superb You're at a wonderful stage in your life and thinking of what to do with it. You're not ready to get married just yet and you don't want one of those paper thin relationships that last for weeks, months, or even years before breaking down. So what do you do? Wait it out until the next super hot girl comes on the scene? Too bad if she never does! Who knows when the right one might come along on her terms? Or maybe she's waiting for you too! You can prepare yourself through rigorous self-study which will make you an expert on any topic under the sun while simultaneously strengthening your social skills and personal growth. Waiting around for the right girl is like waiting for a fruitful idea to pop into your head. It may never happen until you're ready to work on it and make it happen. The same is true with relationships, but that's another topic entirely; "Love & Relationship Advice". Instead, we're going to talk about creating the right circumstances which will force the girl of your dreams to show up with her own terms and conditions.

The first thing you should do before even looking for a girl is to 2 things 2 things: 1- Have a very good group of friends who know how to have fun and help you out in times of trouble. - Be a self-starter who can do what needs be done without having to rely on other people. Luckily these 2 things are the primary requirements for developing your social skills and personal growth. Find some friends who will keep you motivated and accountable as you make new goals for yourself. When you feel like giving up on some aspect of your life, they'll be there to hold you accountable and help you through the hard times. They'll remind you of what goals to focus on and help motivate you to continue growing, learning, and improving yourself. When you make a mistake they'll know how to make fun of you, and not take you too seriously. This is important because one of the first things you're going to do is tell your friends about your goals and the change that needs to come about in your life. You won't just come out and say, "I'm looking for a wife!" but instead say something like, "I want to improve my social skills so I can meet more people." This way if the goals you set don't involve women, they won't try to sabotage or ruin your efforts. You'll definitely need their support as the changes take place and as each goal is accomplished. Keep them informed about what you're doing and how far you've come. You'll need their help if you run into any problems along the way. 2- Develop your social skills with real world activities, not online. We all know how it works with online dating sites, but the grass isn't always greener on the other side of that screen. Sure there's a lot of positive feedback and validation that comes from virtual interactions, but nothing compares to having someone to talk to in real life who can give you constructive criticism and advice based on their own experiences rather than just talking about what they think about something they've never experienced before.
